WILLKIE READY TO SELL G. O. P. PLATFORM OF "AMERICANISM, PEACE AND PREPAREDNESS" TO THE NATION AS REPUBLICAN NOMINEE

Indiana Utility Executive Won Nomination On Sixth Ballot After Running Thomas E. Dewey Into Retirement and Beating Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio — Launched Campaign Sixty Days Ago.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, June 28—A 48-year-old red-headed utility executive, Wendell Willkie, of Indiana, was ready today to sell the G. O. P. platform of "Americanism, peace and preparedness" to the nation as the newly-crowned Republican Presidential nominee.

Managed by two political youngsters, Governor Harold L. Stassen, of Minnesota, and Rep. Charles Halleck, of Indiana, Willkie won the nomination on the sixth ballot after running New York racket-buster Thomas E. Dewey into retirement and beating Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft in a two-man race.

There has been nothing quite like Willkie's victory in all America's political history. A life-long Democrat, he joined the Republican party less than two years ago after a "break" with the New Deal. Now he leads the Republican party in an effort to oust the New Deal from power.

His Presidential campaign was launched less than sixty days ago—after he had been exalted as White House timber by old General Hugh "Iron Pants" Johnson. The Johnson suggestion at the time was regarded as ridiculous by Congressional Republicans, but today Willkie gets his chance at the White House.

Among bewildered Republican chieftains, there are a few who get credit for "seeing the light." There are Halleck, who first agreed to make the Willkie nominating speech "even though it wasn't popular at home," and Stassen, the keynote, who endorsed him publicly on the second day of the convention and became his floor manager.

Then there were Alf M. Landon, the 1936 nominee, who released his Kansas delegation, and Senate Leader Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, who freed his Oregon delegation, in time for them to help nominate Willkie. And House Leader Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, a favorite son, soon withdrew to let another bulk swing to the Willkie standard.

Willkie won the nomination the "hard way," coming from far behind to take a stretch drive. He had plenty of support in the convention but far more in the galleries where thousands cheered his name every time it was mentioned and encouraged his managers to fresh efforts and final success. He actually won because he broke down the Dewey strength in New York State.

The story of his nomination lies in Willkie's gains from New York. His votes from the Empire State on successive ballots, were: 1st, 8; 2nd, 18; 3rd, 27 (which he got by demanding a roll call after 17 were reported for him); 4th, 35; 5th, 75 (which made Dewey quit); and 6th, 78 (before it was made unanimous).

The first ballot round Willkie running third behind a leading Dewey and a second-place Taft. He kept gaining along with Taft, at Dewey's expense, until he went into first place on the fourth ballot, with Taft second and Dewey third. On the fifth ballot, with favorite sons dropping out all over the hall, he crossed the 400 mark and he won on the sixth.

The convention reeked with drama as the nominating session started. Chairman Martin emphasized it when he told intimates he intended to hold the convention in session until it reached a decision, and then admonished the auditorium crowd:

"Be quiet, because we have a long night ahead of us."

There were thousands of Willkie followers in the hall. They made their presence known constantly chanting a college cheering squad:

"We want Willkie!"

They cheered every gain. Then booted all opposition. Martin appealed to them time and again to behave—but they wanted Willkie.

At one stage, a rival shouted back: "We want a Republican!" He got a big cheer from the rest of the crowd and a rare moment of silence from the Willkie admirers.

The first ballot of the night was the third of the convention. Two had been taken in the afternoon. Dewey led on both, with Taft second and Willkie third.

Willkie first dented his opposition when he gained six votes from Arizona. Previously, the Sunset State had been voting for Publisher Frank E. Gannett of Rochester. Willkie then picked up a few here and there including four in Kansas and six in Maryland. Next he busted right into the Dewey stronghold of New York when Chairman William F. Bleakley announced the State's vote as including 57 for Dewey and 17 for Willkie. It was challenged immediately by Willkie's organization. On the demanded roll-call, Willkie increased his score to 27 votes while reducing Dewey to 54. Right there, Willkie beat Dewey out of the nomination, though he had yet to win it for himself.

This gave Kenneth F. Simpson newly ousted as New York national committeeman by Dewey, his chance. He voted for Willkie, while the galleries cheered. The ballot ended with Willkie taking second place from Taft right on Dewey's heels.

Foresee Possible Split Between Italo-German Axis and Russia

Washington, June 28—Possibility of a split between the Italo-German axis, and Russia, as a result of conflicting ambitions in the turbulent Balkans, was foreseen by diplomatic observers today.

Russia's occupation of Bessarabia and part of Bukovina coincided with reports that Berlin and Rome have agreed upon partition of all the Balkan States.

Under this agreement, Italy's sphere of influence would include Bulgaria and Greece.

Reports of the Rome-Berlin deal, it was believed, may have precipitated Moscow's sudden demands upon King Carol of Rumania.

Meanwhile Willkie's manager crossed the hall and publicly sat down beside Alf Landon in the Kansas delegation to discuss the next move. Photographers made a holiday of their conference—an amazing departure from decisions arrived at "in smoke-filled rooms."

And it was a momentous decision. Landon agreed to switch the 18 Kansas votes from Senator Arthur Capper to Willkie. The fourth ballot ended with Willkie crossing the 300 mark, leading the whole procession and driving Dewey into third place.

On the fifth, the Willkie crew whipped up their bandwagon. Landon tossed his 18 Kansans behind the Willkie standard. Taft's managers made a valiant effort to halt the runaway. They picked up 22 votes in Kentucky but the galleries screamed "we want Willkie."

And then Willkie finally smashed Dewey. He took 75 votes out of the New York delegation in a madfest demonstration and Dewey faded right out of the picture. By the end of the roll-call, Dewey had released his delegates.

Employment Office Here To Close Tomorrow

The Bristol Office of the Pennsylvania Employment Service will be discontinued as of June 29th, and after that date it will be merged with the Doylestown Office, which will house all records and files of local applicants for work opportunities and unemployment compensation insurance.

MAN'S GREATEST GOAL

Because of what has happened in Europe during the last year, it has become the fashion to mix pity with some slight flavor of contempt when speaking of the bungling of the de-mocracies. Sometimes one hears the words "effete," "ineffectual," and so forth, applied to them, these being words, incidentally, which the dictators are prone to use in the same connection.

There is nothing to admire in the tendency to parrot such words.
"Effete" means worn out and bar-ren. Democracy is not effete. It remains, as always, the sole means of effectuating the ultimate purposes for which governments—all governments—are instituted among men:
Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Tyrants cannot confer liberty on those they govern and, without liberty, there is no happiness for the civilized man.

What has been proved in Europe is only that democracy is relatively ineffectual in making war. Democracy is at a disadvantage when it must deal with aggression by one-man governments.

That is all the truer now because of the nature of modern war—the mechanized speed of its onslaught and its industrialization. The dictator can prepare faster, because his single will determines the time for dropping experimentation with improved weapons and going into mass production. And, with modern weapons, he can strike faster and harder than ever before.

However, that is no new discovery. The democracies found in the World War they had to ape some of the methods of dictatorship—it was termed autocracy then—in order to organize for war as effectively as their opponents. And they are rediscovering it now, in some cases too late.

But does that prove democracy to be effete, outworn and outmoded?
It does not, unless one agrees with the dictators that war is the fulfillment of man's highest destiny, the supreme purpose of government.

Much of the world is at war today, but even so, it is unlikely that conception has the validity to let it endure for long. Most men prefer life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And, despite vicissitudes, they are apt to continue in the long run to seek them, in the only way in which they are to be obtained.

Even if democracy should disappear, for a time, from the whole world, its principle would remain, not effete, but vital as life itself.

A writer says the United States helped arm the dictators, Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini, just as it helped arm Japan, by selling them millions of tons of scrap iron and other war materials. The sellers got a lot of money out of it—not as much as it is going to cost to arm against the dictators and Japan, but a lot.

Charlie Chaplin is suing a magazine for a million dollars for printing his picture. Few think he will get that much, but if he gets any part of it, it will help pay his staff of press agents who get magazines to print his picture.

It appears that the move to add another month to the year has been temporarily abandoned, or until it can be learned how Hitler is going to come out with his endeavor to turn the year into one long night.

into the vault, and told to remain there under threat of being "bumped off." All the available loose cash in the cages was scooped up, the amount of which is given at $9,105.35.

The bandits were quick to make a get-away after they had secured the loot, all four running from the front door, leaping into the car which dashed off at a furious pace along the Lackawanna trail toward Doylestown.

Police believe that the bandits had planned to take the large payroll of the Riegel Paper Company, but that their plans went astray.

The daring hold-up was staged just before the town factories poured out their workers for the lunch hour. Although descriptions of the bandits turned in by residents who saw the fleeing car, were at variance, police know that the car bore New Jersey license tags. It is believed that the car had been stolen. One of the customers, Miss Olivia Shick, was in the bank to secure money as she is to be married today, and plans to leave on a honeymoon. The driver of the car is described as wearing a gray suit and hat, brown gloves and rimmed glasses.
It was the second time the bank has been held up. On December 18, 1928, $5,000 was taken from the institution.
Leattor and Phillips were also victims that day. Mrs. Leonore Leattor, the bank head's wife at that time fired a shot at the escaping bandits from the bed-room window of her home, which is next door to the bank.

HOWEVER, the truth about the platform is that in a month—or six weeks at the most—it will be almost completely forgotten. It will figure hardly at all in the general campaign. The candidate will make his own platform. This convention has left him a far freer hand to do this than conventions usually do. It is not, of course, a great platform, but there have been many worse.

AND WHAT DO platforms amount to, anyway? The best, clearest, simplest, soundest platform ever adopted by a political party was the Democratic platform at Chicago in 1932 upon which Mr.
Roosevelt was first nominated and elected. To every word of that platform he solemnly subscribed.
He pledged himself up to the hilt to carry it out in every particular.
Yet, six months after he took office he heaved the whole document "out the window," repudiated it in word, letter and spirit with a completeness never seen before. After that repudiation, upon which he seemed politically to thrive instead of being destroyed, the surprising thing is that anyone again should take a platform seriously. Recollection of that performance makes it seem singularly futile either to commend or condemn this platform or the one which will be adopted three weeks later when the Democrats meet—presumably to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for the third term.

The affair was planned by Mrs. Eugene Boyd, Mrs. Charles Clickner, Mrs. William Phillips, the Misses Elizabeth Reed, Florence York and Margaret Perry.

Others in attendance were: Mrs. George Yantz, Harlingen, N. J.; Mrs. Walter Terhune, Mrs. George Cramer, Belle Meade, N. J.; Miss Mary Buzas, Pennington, N. J.; Mrs. Raymond Hampton, Yardley; Mrs. Walter Specht, Mrs. Blanche Hetherington, Mrs. John Scott, Mrs. Charles Markley, Mrs. Sheldon Kressler, Mrs. Joseph Boyd, Mrs. James Moore, Mrs. LeRoy Reed, the Misses Leona Wells, Ella Alexander, Evelyn Rudhart, Frances Hellyer, Langhorne; Mrs. Wesley Hunter, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. Jack Hewing, South Langhorne; Mrs. Leslie Shry, Burholme; Mrs. William Perry, Hulmeville; Mrs. Albert Rowe, Holland, Pa.

The decorative plan was carried out in pink and white, with colored streamers representing water, emanating from a watering-can attached to the central lighting fixture. Two large streamers lead to the "treasure chest" where gifts were to be found. A buffet supper was partaken of, the table decorations also being in pink. Prizes for games were awarded to Mrs. Kressler, Miss Rudhart and Miss Alexander.

Father what is our business as real Christians? Are we interpreting our responsibility in terms of some profession? Save us from a narrow individualism which would make us think only of ourselves. Make us more like Christ, who thought in terms of mankind, and gave Himself for the sake of humanity. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE The Grand Theatre's attraction, today, will be "It All Came True," based on the Louis Bromfield novel and starring Ann Sheridan, the red-headed Texan dynamo who has become Hollywood's most outstanding feminine personality, combining, as she does, that "oomph" with dramatic fire.

Playing one of the most delightful characters ever created by Bromfield, Ann is at once bold and beautiful, hot-tempered and honest. She is sentimental but is the last person in the world to admit it. She sings, does the rhumba, and "hangs one" on the jaw of a would-be talent scout, all with equal efficiency.

BRISTOL THEATRE "Covered Wagon Days," an exciting drama of silver smuggling days in the old Southwest, comes to the Bristol Theatre for two days starting today, with Roger Pryor and Jo Ann Sayers.

Boris Karloff stars in the weird and fascinating horror-film, "The Man With Nine Lives," due to open today at the Bristol Theatre. Central figure of the thrilling drama is a ruthless scientist, portrayed by Karloff, who returns to life after being in a state of "frozen sleep" for ten years.

RITZ THEATRE Do you know—that Lew Ayres, enacting the name role of Dr. Kildare in "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," once directed films as well? That Harold S. Bucquet, who directed "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," used to be assistant director to Lionel Barrymore whom he now directs in the series of popular hospital films? That Lew Ayres has an entire weather bureau in his Hollywood hill-top home? That Ayres and Lionel Barrymore have worn the same costumes in all four Kildare films?

WE'RE not telling you this 1940 Buick is the best we've ever built—you're telling us!

Never in our history have we built so many cars as we have this model year—not even in the flush days of the twenties.

Now why is that? Because of the big Dynaflash engine that's the only power plant balanced after assembly? Because of the soft-and-easy BuCoil Springing ride?

Because of size? Because of style?

CARL MUNDT ON THE MOUND WINS FOR LANDRETHS

Yields But Seven Hits To The Visiting Ambler Team

FINAL SCORE IS 7 TO 1

Farmers Did All Their Scoring In Third and Eighth Innings

With Carl Mundt of Bill Griggs' Madox pottery team of Trenton on the pitching mound, Landreth Seeds last night defeated the Ambler club at Landreth Park 7-1.

Mundt yielded but seven hits, Taylor, the visiting first baseman, collecting three of these. Their run came in the fifth inning. Taylor, safe on Liberatore's bad throw, advanced on an out and scored when Rizzo singled to left field.

The Farmers did all their scoring in two innings, the third and eighth, when they clubbed Rizzo, Elkins Park ace right hander who worked for the visitors, hard.

Bill Griggs started the scoring in the third inning, making second when Douglass muffed his lofty fly to right centre field, advanced to third on Mundt's sacrifice and counted on Rockhill's fly. Liberatore's single and steal followed by consecutive home runs by Miksis to left field and Breslin to right centre counting three more.

In the eighth, Miksis' base on balls and steal, hits by David, Costello and Rossi, and a fielder's choice, scored their final three runs.

Eddie Liberatore starred in the field, covering lots of territory around second base, accepting eight out of nine chances.

Saturday Landreth will play Roebling at Landreth Park. Sunday, Vineyard will be the attraction.

HOME RUNS PAVE WAY FOR KING TEAM TO WIN

MORRISVILLE, June 28—Home runs by "Reds" Yeager and "Stan" Weislawski paved the way for a King Supply victory over the league-leading Croydon Y. M. A. nine last evening on Island field. Final score stood: King Supply, 6; Y. M. A., 1.

It was the fifth straight victory for the King boys who have climbed from eighth place to a deadlock for third. The defeat also shaved one-half a game off the Y. M. A. lead on first place, reducing it to one and one-half games.

"Herm" Pluma started on the hill for the Y's and after being rapped in the first was relieved by Manager Tom Henny Morgan. Morgan finished and did a good job of it.

For the King Supply nine, Frank Moylan did the twirling and he set down the Croydonites with five bingos.

Both home runs came with two men on base. Yeager's drive was a tremendous clout which cleared the creek in right field and went into the grounds where a circus is being held.

FIFTH WARD TEAM
INCREASES ITS LEAD

Winning its tenth straight game, the Fifth Ward Sporting Club increased its lead in the Community Softball League by winning over the Wilson Distillery team, 3-2, last evening on the high school field.

Two home runs in succession by Captain Peterpaul and Danny DiMidio featured the game and gave the Warders the triumph.

"Mush" Melidio and Jerome Gerome engaged in a fine hurling duel and both were given excellent support.

Stanley was the leading batter of the evening, the Wilson star getting two out of three.
